ChatGPT is “one-fifth of Google.” Of what?

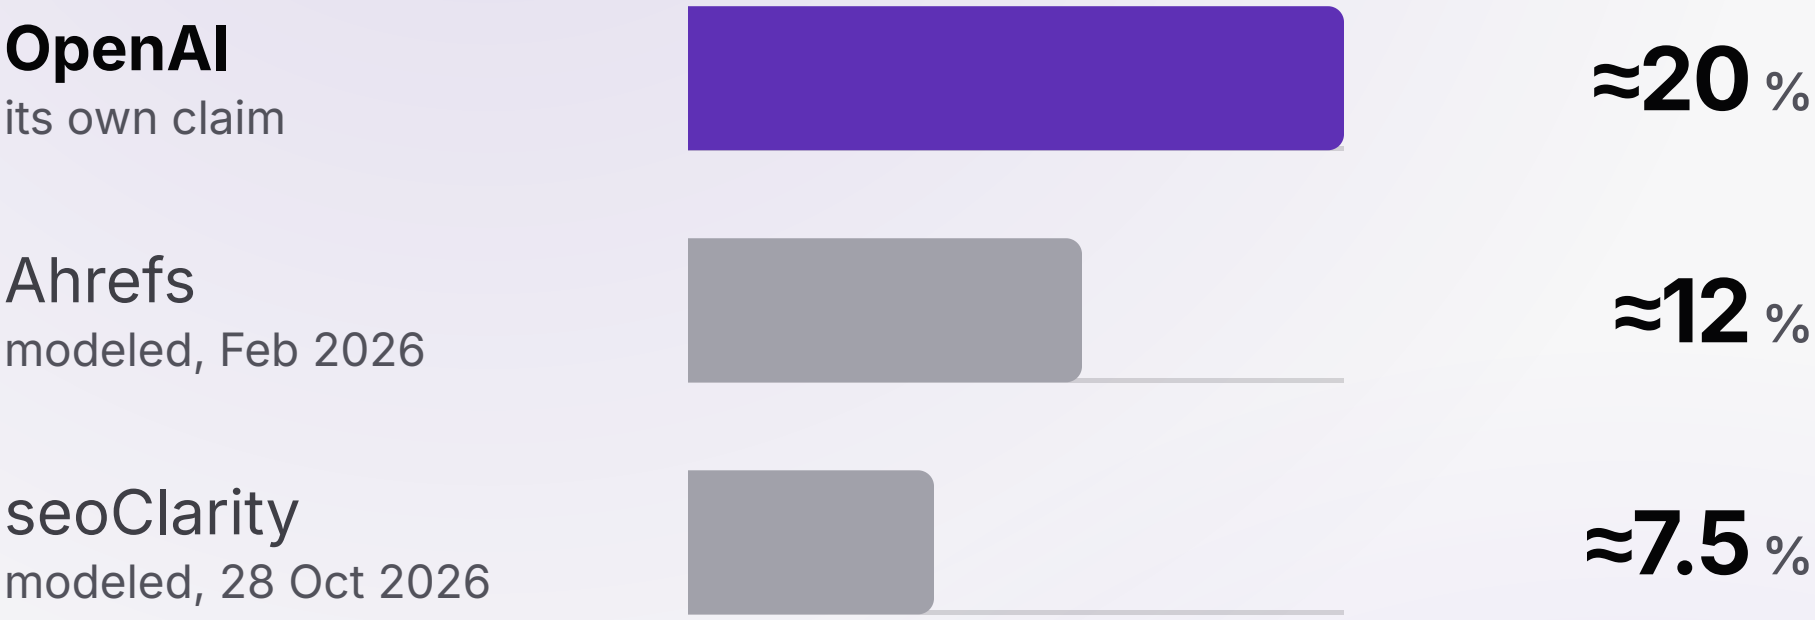

OpenAI says ChatGPT handles about one-fifth as many search-like queries as Google. It is OpenAI’s own claim.

No Google total, no period and no regions were published. Three different measures follow.

Same question, three answers

ChatGPT search-like queries as a share of Google’s.

Ahrefs counts only prompts that look like searches, using ChatGPT prompt data from July 2025. Counting every prompt, it gets 18%. seoClarity calls its figure a modeled comparison, not a measured share.

Both can be true: ChatGPT is large and growing, and Google’s own volume is also growing. The last line is my read.

QUOTE IT SAFELY

What you can and cannot say

SAFE

OpenAI says ChatGPT handles roughly one-fifth as many search-like queries as Google. It has not disclosed the Google baseline, period or regions.

NOT SAFE

“ChatGPT has 20% of Google’s market share.”
“ChatGPT sends 20% as much traffic as Google.”
“Google lost 20% to ChatGPT.”

OpenAI counts a search each time a prompt makes ChatGPT search the web. That is not the same unit as a query on Google.

WHAT I WOULD DO

This week, three checks

1

Check you are not blocking OAI-SearchBot

OpenAI says it is the bot behind ChatGPT search answers. GPTBot is separate, for training.

2

Ask your 10 buyer questions in ChatGPT

Write down who is cited and which sources it shows. Do it again next month.

3

Add “ChatGPT or another AI” to “how did you find us?”

It is the cheapest way to see what the last click hides.
